

An amazing 70% approximately of UK adults still don't have a Will!

If you don't have a Will - then you should read this because without a Will...

- The state decides who will get your money and property.
- Your spouse will not necessary inherit everything you own, especially if you have children
- see Intestacy Rules.
 - Unmarried partners may get nothing from their partner's estate and home!
 - If your spouse re-marries, their new partner and children may inherit before your children. Your children may not inherit anything!
- Disabled children inheriting a substantial amount could lose all their state benefits!
- If you die in an accident, any compensation may go to the wrong people - or even the state!
 - Your share of the family home may have to be sold to pay for future care costs for your spouse or partner
 - Inadequate tax planning could mean the Inland Revenue receive money that your family should have

Now is the time to act to solve these problems and to secure your family's future...
